KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Snježana Kereković, Faculty of Mechanical Engineering and Naval Architecture, University of Zagreb, Croatia

Snježana Kereković graduated in English Language and Literature and German Language and Literature from the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, University of Zagreb. She completed her PhD studies with a dissertation on multi-word lexical units in technical English and their equivalents in Croatian. For most of her teaching career, she was a technical and business English teacher at the Faculty of Mechanical Engineering and Naval Architecture, University of Zagreb. Her main fields of interest are specialised language teaching methodology, applied linguistics, terminology, and translation. She authored and co-authored several research and professional papers, case reports, and two technical English course books for students of mechanical engineering.

Joanna Kic-Drgas, Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznań, Poland

Joanna Kic-Drgas graduated in Applied Linguistics from Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. She received her PhD in Linguistics in 2012 and obtained the postdoctoral degree (dr hab.) in 2023. She specialises in Languages for Specific Purposes (LSP) at the Institute of Applied Linguistics, Faculty of Modern Languages and Literatures, Adam Mickiewicz University. Her research interests include LSP teaching, intercultural communication, and the integration of emerging technologies into foreign language education. In her monographs and research articles, she explores the development of communicative competence in professional settings, with particular emphasis on the linguistic and pragmatic demands placed on language users in workplace contexts.

Aleksandra Łuczak, Kozminski University, Warsaw, Poland

Aleksandra Łuczak, PhD, is an experienced teacher of Legal English and Business English, course developer, and specialist in the application of artificial intelligence to language teaching, based in Poland. With more than twenty years of experience, she has established a strong reputation for helping legal professionals master legal English. At Kozminski University, she teaches TOLES (Test of Legal English Skills) preparation courses and provides one-to-one coaching for practising lawyers from a wide range of legal fields. Under her guidance, most participants achieve Gold Band results in the TOLES Advanced examination, reflecting the effectiveness of her learner-centred approach. She also integrates plain language principles into all of her courses. Passionate about combining technology with Legal English teaching, she enriches traditional TOLES materials with original interactive resources developed specifically for Legal English learners. Her online learning platform, pustulka.edu.pl, offers more than 2,500 microlearning activities at CEFR levels B1–C2, designed to develop vocabulary, grammar, and examination skills in an engaging and effective way. She is Director of the Language Centre at Kozminski University, where she also founded the PLAin Kozminski Lab, dedicated to promoting the use of plain language among students and staff.

Ursula Wingate, King's College London, United Kingdom

Ursula Wingate is Professor of Language Education in the School of Education, Communication and Society at King's College London. Her research interests include theoretical and pedagogical models that underpin the development of students' academic literacy. Drawing on her recent research project on perceptions of and practices related to generative artificial intelligence (GenAI) tools, she proposes pedagogical approaches that enable students to use GenAI ethically and effectively in their academic writing.
